About Wills.

Some amusing instances of pein an interesting little volume on the "Curiosity and Law of Wills," in the act of taking a drink, when a bullet from Hill's revolver went are disturbing the meeting. I wish culiarities in testators are gathered by John Proffait, councellor-at-law. trial which followed was long and Brother Foster went and returned different kinds and give an examfor English wills, contains many remarkle testaments. Mr. Zimmerman, who died in England as late as 1840, directs in his will that have it pumped out at 5 cents per no person shall attend his corpse to the grave and no funeral bell shall be rung, adding the startling come again-that is to say, if I can," -a very safe and reassuring proviso. One unhappily married Englishman who died in London in 1791 leaves his wife Elizabeth "the sum of one shilling to be paid to her six months after my decease." In his will he says of the aforesaid pounds each, and sold them at 40 Elizabeth that "Heaven seems to have sent her into the world solely to drive me out of it," and that "the strength of Samson, the genius of Homer, the prudence of Agustus, the skill of Pyrhus, the patience of Job, the philosophy of Socrates, the subtlecy of Hannibal and the vigil-

Instances are "plentiful as blackberries" in which testators prohibit their wives from marrying again. Mr. Granville Harcort, whose will was proved in 1862, is an exception. In it he says: "The unspeakable grave's future fate induces me to advise her earnestly to unite herself again with some one who may est wish that my darling husband should marry ere long a nice, pretty she never ceased to be beautiful.
